16th Training Regt., LEIPZIG (C)REPORT1. Locations

The 16th Regiment is located in LEIPZIG in the "Old 106th Caserne" at UTM 33 UUS 168942.

50X1-HUM

Neighboring Units

In the same caserne is an independent signal communication battalion, a battery company and an independent Military Band. The offices of the ID States Attorney are also located here.

50X1-HUM

Other units including the HQ of MD, an unidentified Soviet armored unit and maintenance shop, a Soviet hospital, a Soviet military prison, the 3d Arty Regt, the 1st Bde (Soviet) and an unidentified T-54 engineer battalion are shown in L-1011.

2. Identification and Subordination

The 16th Training Regiment (16. Ausbildung Regiment) formerly 16th Mtz Rifle Regt is subordinate to the 11th Mtz Rifle Div, HALL. Other organizations shown in L-1011 (with the exception of Soviet units) are directly subordinate to MD III.

History

Until Dec. 57, the 16th Regiment was a guard regiment at which time it was converted into a training unit for reserves. Prior to conversion, the regiment never participated in field maneuvers and was never over one third strength. This does not include the addition to its strength in 1957, because this unit was kept up to strength and trained normally. At the time of conversion, the greater part of the EM not needed for cadre were transferred to other units of 11th Mtz Rifle Div. The immediate predecessor of the present commander is Maj DORFEL (fmr) who was transferred to the reserve. The present commander, Maj HAA (fmr), is a former Wehrmacht NCO who, until 1955, occupied a high position in the office in LEIPZIG. In 1955 he was given a direct commission as captain and sent to the Command School at DRESDEN for one year, given command of a battalion in the 11th Mtz Rifle Div and then assigned to subject regiment at the time of its conversion to regt'l CO with the rank of Capt. He was promoted to Maj on 1 Oct 57.

3. Specialization

See Incl 2 and 3. The 1st Platoon of the Recon Co is called the Amphibious Tank Platoon. It is so called only for there are no amphibious vehicles assigned at present.

4. Strength

The strength of the regiment varies between 800 and 900 men. These figures only include EM. Reserve officers are called up for training to provide approximately two for each company strength unit. Technical officers are available for reserve training, since only NCOs attend the courses. The same situation exists for sergeants. However, because of the shortage of competent officers in the reserve, this includes transfers to the reserve.

5. Equipment (See Incl 4)6. Training

The first training classes began in Nov - Dec 57. Trainees from this first group were former KVP or Wehrmacht members. The next group was to have begun training in Jan 58 and was to have been drawn from university students; since these students were still in school, the next classes were eventually begun in May 58. The training program was as follows:

a. Instructors

Former NCOs of the EGA who are presently in the reserve are called in one week prior to the arrival of regular trainees and given the training material to be taught during the regular training course. Theoretically the cadre act as instructors while the reserve officers and NCOs act as assistants. The latter are in most cases more capable than the cadre and do most of the training.

b. Training Classes

These classes are composed entirely of universities or technical institute students who are required to take four weeks of training yearly. 50X1-HUM

Students from the Freiberg Mining Academy were generally assigned to the engineer or chemical platoons. [redacted] assignment was made on the basis of scholastic background to the various arms and services.

Training is divided approximately into about 40% classroom and 60% field training at squad, platoon and company level and it is no more than training in the basic elements of the various arms.

7. Supplya. Rations

In addition to the food required for daily consumption, a two day reserve ration is constantly maintained. It consists of rice and other grain foods, dried vegetables, canned meat and butter and bread similar to "Knaeckebrot".

[redacted] rations were available for the entire regiment, even though a complete, combat-ready regiment could not be organized from presently assigned personnel. 50X1-HUM

b. Ammunition

Subject regiment maintains two basic loads for each medium tank consisting of 50 round of HE ammunition and five belts of MG ammunition for each MG. Also on hand were three basic loads of small arms ammunition and three basic loads of artillery and mortar ammunition for which Source did not know amounts.

c. POL

One POL tank truck and trailer, with a combined capacity of 9,000 liters is kept loaded and in reserve at all times. 50X1-HUM

d. Vehicles and Equipment

Approximately 50% to 60% of all vehicles are normally deadlined because of the lack of POL supplies or spare parts. [redacted] one H3A trk [redacted] was deadlined for four months with a broken front axle and a K30 which could not be driven for four weeks for lack of a fuel pump. It is common to see a line up of deadlined vehicles in the motor pool and also common practice to cannibalize these vehicles to keep 50X1-HUM others in operation. The primary mission of the Motor Veh Off (See Incl 2) is to travel to factories and other spare parts sources to purchase necessary parts for vehicles.

a. Uniforms

The clothing situation in the 10th Tng Regt is not good; it is better for the cadre personnel than for the trainees. The cadre have the opportunity of exchanging worn out and dirty uniforms whereas the trainees do not. All personnel have the grey parade uniform but duty uniforms are still issued from dyed stocks of old mostly worn out KVP clothing.

8. Efficiency

Subject regiment cannot be judged on its combat efficiency due to its training regiment status. Judging from the existing morale, little could be expected from the organization were it to be brought up to strength and placed in active status.

a. Officer Personnel

There are roughly three classes of officers in the regiment; those who are capable in spite of or because of their political convictions, those who although potentially capable are officers only for personal advantage and those who are either totally incapable or so disgraced and disgusted that they are practically useless. Among the latter officers, it is common to find many who are incapable of correcting the NCOs whom they command.

50X1-HUM

b. NCO Personnel

The NCOs were generally good, at least in the medium tank battalion. The men are technically and tactically capable and, insofar as the handling of their vehicles is concerned they are interested and satisfied.

c. Discipline and Morale

Discipline and morale are practically non-existent in the 10th Tng Regt in either the officer or NCO ranks as is esprit de corps. Officers fraternize with subordinates drink and carouse with them and absent themselves from duty in the same manner and at approximately the same rate. It is a common occurrence to have no more than 25 or 30 men in the eastern after duty hours other than the guards on duty. Drinking, both on military and civilians are a daily occurrence; officers are just as often involved as the men. Approximately two months ago a group of drunken soldiers disrupted one of the largest cafes in the city and chased them down the street. An average of two or three officers were under arrest at any given day or six NCOs and that the calls for lower grades were constantly full.

50X1-HUM

a. Causes

The situation is caused primarily by the lack of leadership and the following:

(1) Leadership made in officer and NCO schools are not kept. The service is patinated in the belief of colors and students are promised "everything under the sun" but the motivating elements are not given assignments promised but are sent to units for which they have no aptitude their enthusiasm disappears rapidly.

(2) There has never been a satisfactory duty program in the regiment which would appeal to the personnel and arouse their ambition. Both EM and officers have too much free time on their hands.

(3) Another contributing factor is that NCOs with five or more years of service are promoted unless dismissed from service; they therefore have no fear of being sent to the rear area or arrested or confinement.

(4) The lack of leadership exists almost universally. The former regimental commander was an extremely weak and faceless individual who permitted the morale to deteriorate. The present commander is apparently little better for, although he makes high sounding speeches at party gatherings and regimental formations, he actually takes no interest in his command. The commander of the medium tank battalion is technically capable but he is known as "the biggest 'scuse' in his battalion." He too preaches morality to his men but on payday he is commonly seen in the HO tavern, in the company of his Dep Cmdr, his Polit Off and CofS, where all drink to excess, roaring out smutty songs and making insulting remarks to passing women. This commander has been known to borrow money from his own vehicle driver.

9. Miscellaneousa. New T34/85 Tanks

Subject regiment received 31 x T34/85 tanks in Apr 58 from an unknown source. These tanks were not new but were in rather good condition. They replaced old T 34/76 tanks and SP 76 guns. Source did not know the disposition of the old tanks but stated that the majority of the SP guns were delivered to the BSP; the remainder were taken to the VEB RWH (Reparaturwerk R. BRANDENBURG) where they are presently being rebuilt as tank maintenance trucks. In this process the 76 mm gun is removed and one MG is mounted forward on the right wall. The two ZIS motors are removed and replaced by one G5 motor and a large receptacle for tank tracks is built on the deck behind the driver. The battle compartment is fitted with a lathe, benches and other power tools and a compartment is constructed beneath the floor at the rear for a gasoline engine powered, electric generator. Other receptacles for spare parts are built on the fenders above the vehicle tracks.

50X1-HUM

b. First Sergeant Duties

[redacted] the duties of the First Sergeant (Innendienstleiter) as follows:

- (1) Personal preparation of the morning report.
- (2) Supervision of the arms room, for which he is personally responsible.
- Receipt of ammunition and maintenance of records on its expenditure by means of the firing records log (Schiessekladde).
- (3) Supervision of the police of the company area.
- (4) Issue of clothing and equipment and supervision of the Co supply room.
- (5) Preparation and maintenance of guard and duty rosters. There is no manual governing these items; therefore the 1st Sgt usually sets up his own system of company records. Incl 5 shows examples of the regimental guard order and the company records.
- (6) Preparation of the monthly payroll and the payment of enlisted personnel. Incl 6 shows a sample payroll (Gehaltsliste). This is a pre-printed form in which the 1st Sgt enters the names of all company EM alphabetically, totals and checks the amounts to be paid and, accompanied by the Co CO, hand carries to the regimental finance office where the payroll is received. The 1st Sgt then pays EM under the supervision of the Co CO or other officer.
- (7) In combat the 1st Sgt would be concerned chiefly with preparation of strength reports, supervision of troop feeding and supply of ammunition, clothing and other items.

50X1-HUM

The 1st Sgt has no company clerk and no typewriter; consequently he must accomplish all such administrative work alone and by hand.

50X1-HUM

c. New Equipment

Incl 4 mentions three Molotov vehicles equipped with infra-red night driving devices and one ZIS half-truck radar truck. The three Molotov vehicles are equipped with radio and are employed both as commanders communication trucks and in fire control communication roles.

[redacted] they were received now from an unknown Soviet unit about Oct 57.

Where the Regtl Guard Order is typed, the Co. Guard and Duty Roster is made up by hand by the 1st Sgt. There is no manual which prescribes its makeup but the sample given here is common. It is executed at least 24 hours prior to the date of the first duty; according to the Regtl Guard Order which is published at least three days prior to the first day of duty. The company roster is posted on the company bulletin board, and each person concerned is required to sign opposite his name under "Remarks".

The shaded squares in the date line are so indicated to denote weekends and holidays only (since the sample is made up for the month of May, in which a number of holidays occur, it affords an excellent example of the amount of duty required).

No person is exempt from duty, except personnel assigned to the staff, and the sequence of duty is never changed; even in cases of leave. When a man has duty but must be away for any reason, he exchanges his duty with the next man on the list and adjusts when he returns. Long periods of leave must be planned for at least four weeks in advance, in order that the 1st Sgt may set up the duty roster accordingly.

As indicated on page 1, the various assignments are entered in colored pencil according to a legend which the 1st Sgt makes up; colors are not standard but will vary with different organizations.

In addition to this form, the 1st Sgt is also required to make up the sentry roster which assigns sentries by name to specified posts. Sentries on the main gate must be at least sergeants when the unit is large enough to have them available; when not corporals are assigned.
